

June 3 -14

Faculty Institute: Flipping Your Course

switch your lecture and homework assignments

Flipped learning is a pedagogical approach in which direct instruction moves from a group learning space to an individual learning space. The resulting classroom time is transformed into a dynamic, interactive learning environment. The instructor helps guide students as they apply concepts and engage creatively in the subject matter.

Summer 2019 Faculty Institute Dates

We will hold a two-week faculty institute in which you can improve your knowledge and skills in designing and developing an exemplary course in a flipped format.

Monday, June 3 – Friday, June 14
Proposals due Tuesday, May 28

Who Should Attend

The institute is open to tenured, tenure-track, and non-tenure-track faculty with previous face-to-face teaching experience. Participants will receive a $1,000 faculty award to help offset course redesign costs after successfully completing all expectations listed below.

Expectations

To successfully complete the institute:

- Attend four consecutive classroom sessions
- Submit the following by the end of the final day:
 - Outline of the course(s) you plan to flip
 - Which topics will be covered in face-to-face classes and which will be covered online
 - Rationale for choices made regarding delivery mode or method
 - Online lecture content for one class session
 - Prepare a poster session to present at the Transformational Teaching & Learning Conference (ttlc.tamu.edu)

Proposal Submissions

The number of participants is limited to available seating in the ITS classroom, or approximately 20 people. Submit a proposal by Tuesday, May 28. Attach the proposal as a Microsoft Word or an Adobe PDF file in an email to itshelp@tamu.edu. We will send selection information to participants by the Wednesday before the institute.

Learn more about the faculty institute and flipping your course, including detailed daily agendas and proposal requirements, at its.tamu.edu/fyc.